Native American Heritage Commission

On behalf of the State of California, I welcome you to the Native American Heritage Commission's 40th anniversary celebration. Tonight, we celebrate the whole history of our state: not just our 166 years of statehood, nor the 247 years that have passed since the founding of the first Spanish mission nor even the 474 years since the first European explorer set foot on our shores, but the much vaster scale of time—at least 12,000, and perhaps as long as 15,000 years—that reflects the true length of human occupancy in what is now called California.

On September 29, 1976, I signed into law Assembly Bill 4239, creating the Native American Heritage Commission. Since then the Commission has worked diligently to identify and protect the cultural and archaeological resources that reflect the true depth of California history and the knowledge, memory and wisdom of the first Californians. My actions as governor have consistently supported this important work. In 1982 I signed Senate Bill 297, requiring the Commission to identify a Most Likely Descendant in cases where Native American remains have been discovered, a change in law that has helped protect burial grounds from desecration. In 2014 I moved to increase the protection of our native heritage by signing Assembly Bill 52, which added tribal cultural resources as a separate category to be considered under the California Environmental Quality Act.

I expect the importance of the Commission's role to grow as we continue to work together toward a more honest understanding of where we have come from, what we have done and, perhaps, how we might live in this beautiful place called California for another dozen millennia.

Sincerely,

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

Executive Department
State of California

PROCLAMATION

California has been home to human beings for more than 12,000 years, with the presence of European-Americans representing only a tiny fraction of this time. The first Europeans to arrive in California encountered hundreds of thousands of people organized into hundreds of distinct tribal groups. They flourished in the bountiful hills and valleys of what someday would be called California.

The contact between these first Californians and successive waves of newcomers over the three succeeding centuries was marked by the utter devastation of the native peoples, their families and entire way of life. The colonial regimes of Spain and Mexico through disease and enforced servitude cut the indigenous population by more than half. Then the Gold Rush came, and with it, a wave of new diseases and wanton violence which reduced the Native population again, this time by more than 80 percent. The newborn State of California actually paid for the killing of Native peoples and tolerated or encouraged policies of warfare, slavery and relocation that left no tribe intact. In his 1851 address to the Legislature, our first Governor, Peter Burnett, famously stated, "That a war of extermination will continue to be waged between the two races until the Indian race becomes extinct, must be expected."

In spite of Burnett's prediction, California today is home to the largest population of Native Americans in the fifty states, including both the rebounding numbers of our native tribes and others drawn to the Golden State by its myriad opportunities. The success of tribal businesses and the presence today of tribal members in all walks of life stand as testament to the resilience and indomitable spirit of native peoples. If Governor Burnett could not envision a future California that included Native Americans, it is just as impossible for us today to envision one without them.

NOW THEREFORE I, EDMUND G. BROWN JR., Governor of the State of California, do hereby proclaim September 23, 2016, as "Native American Day" in the State of California.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 15th day of September 2016.

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
Governor of California

Native American Heritage Commission

Welcome to the 40th Anniversary Gala of the California Native American Heritage Commission. The Commission was created in 1976 as an answer to the Native American community's need to preserve and protect their Native American ancestors' gravesites from destruction and reinter their remains with appropriate respect and dignity. These early responsibilities not only provided for the protection of Native American cultural sites but also encouraged the Tribes to consult with state, federal and local agencies. The Native American voice in California was made possible with the support of Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. His unique view of California Native American Tribes, along with all the hard work and dedication of the Tribes, Commissioners, Executive Secretaries, Commission staff, legislators and local government leaders to protect cultural resources has made California an example for other states to emulate. It is through the hard work, dedication and insight of these early Native American individuals and Tribes that our children will have a better future.

The Commission's responsibilities are growing in complexity. There have been major projects for which the Commission has had input or been instrumental in the outcome such as Puvunga, Panhe/Toll Road, Bolsa Chica, Playa Vista, Santa Susanna, Ocotillo Wells, Morro Rock, High Speed Rail, and Feather River to name a few. As an advocate for the protection of Native American cultural resources, the Commission requires knowledgeable individuals and Tribes to work together for the protection of Native American sacred places and provides a legal framework in which protection and preservation becomes the norm.

A recent improvement to the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) is Assembly Bill 52 (AB 52) (Gatto) that mandates tribal consultation be part of CEQA environmental review process, so that Tribes can have input on projects early in the planning process. A new responsibility of the Commission will be to implement the California Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (CalNAGPRA) to ensure that all our Native American ancestors whose remains are in museum collections or on display are repatriated.

We look forward to serving the Native American community. Thank you for your dedication and service for making the Commission what it is today. Working together, we can protect our cultural resources for future generations.

Respectfully,

Native American Heritage Commission

This year is the California Native American Heritage Commission's 40th Anniversary! It is an honor to reflect with those who have helped create and support the Commission. The Commission would not have been able to achieve all it has over the years without the tireless efforts of the Tribes, the Commissioners, its staff, Governor Brown, and other politicians who helped advocate for its creation and the statutes that govern it.

In the last forty years, the Commission has championed the protection of sacred places of California's Native peoples, while upholding the respect and dignity of our ancestors. The Commission has grown both in number and in responsibilities. Just two years ago, Governor Brown signed Assembly Bill 52 (Gatto), a new law that mandates tribal consultation under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) to improve protection of cultural resources.

The Commission has recently taken responsibility for implementing the California Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (CalNAGPRA) and will work to repatriate the ancestral remains of California Natives to their rightful descendants. As new challenges and opportunities present themselves, we look forward to further serving the interests of the many Tribes in our State.

Once again, thank you for your dedication and advocacy that has allowed the Commission to be as successful as it is today. May the next forty years be just as successful!

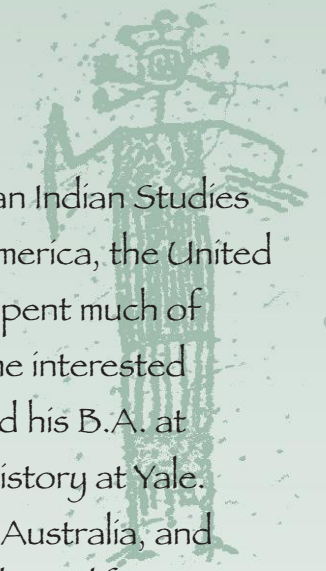

Respectfully,

BETWEEN 1850 AND 1900, 90% OF THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN POPULATION PERISHED FROM DISEASE, STARVATION, POISONING, OR GUN SHOT WOUNDS. PEOPLE WERE COLLECTING THE NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS AND BURIAL ITEMS WITHOUT ANY CARE, WORRY OR CONCERN FOR WHAT THE NATIVE PEOPLE WERE FEELING OR THEIR RELIGIOUS BELIEFS. THE PATTERN OF DESTRUCTION CONTINUED AFTER 1900.

MANY HUMAN REMAINS, INCLUDING LARGE BURIAL MOUNDS, WERE BEING UNCOVERED DURING CONSTRUCTION FOR HOUSING AND ROADS. REMAINS WERE SIMPLY BEING IGNORED BY CONSTRUCTION WORKERS OR COLLECTED BY AMATEUR ARCHAEOLOGISTS. INSENSITIVE WHOLESALERE DESTRUCTION OF BURIAL SITES, OCCURRED AS ARCHAEOLOGISTS COLLECTED NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS AT AN ALARMING RATE. REMAINS WERE BEING WAREHOUSED AT LOCATIONS ACROSS CALIFORNIA FOR FUTURE RESEARCH PROJECTS. IN MANY INSTANCES, CURATORS AND RESEARCHERS HAD NO IDEA HOW MANY REMAINS THEY HAD, OR ANY RECORDS TO INDICATE HOW THEY OBTAINED THEM. ALL OF THIS WAS LEGAL AND VIRTUALLY IMPOSSIBLE FOR NATIVE AMERICANS TO STOP UNTIL APPROPRIATE LEGISLATION WAS PASSED.

DEMANDS BY CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICANS TO PROVIDE PROTECTION OF HUMAN REMAINS AND BURIAL GROUNDS FROM VANDALISM, DESTRUCTION DURING CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS, AND SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH LEAD TO THE CREATION OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION IN 1976 BY THE STATE LEGISLATURE AND THE ADMINISTRATION'S APPROVAL. TODAY, CALIFORNIA'S MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS HAVE A VOICE IN DETERMINING THE TREATMENT AND DISPOSITION OF THEIR ANCESTOR'S HUMAN REMAINS AND ASSOCIATED BURIAL ITEMS.

THE NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION CONSISTS OF THE COMMISSION MEMBERS, THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY AND STAFF. THE OFFICE STAFF REACTS TO DISCOVERIES OF NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS AND INVESTIGATES IMPACTS TO TRADITIONAL CULTURAL PLACES REPORTED BY LOCAL NATIVE AMERICANS. IT REVIEWS THE CULTURAL RESOURCES SECTIONS OF ENVIRONMENTAL DOCUMENTS TO ENSURE IMPACTS TO CULTURAL SITES ARE BEING ASSESSED AND MITIGATED IN COMPLIANCE WITH STATE LAW WITH THE INVOLVEMENT OF THE APPROPRIATE TRIBAL GROUPS. THE STAFF ALSO SEARCHES THE COMMISSION'S SACRED LANDS FILE FOR SITES THAT MAY BE IMPACTED AND PROVIDES PROJECT PROPONENTS WITH CONSULTATION LISTS WITH THE APPROPRIATE LOCAL NATIVE AMERICANS TO CONTACT REGARDING THEIR PROJECT'S IMPACTS TO TRADITIONAL CULTURAL PLACES.

THE COMMISSION ALSO ASSISTS IN DISSEMINATING INFORMATION AND INTERPRETING LAWS FOR TRIBES, TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUAL NATIVE AMERICANS CONCERNED WITH THE PROTECTION OF NATIVE AMERICAN CULTURAL PLACES AND HUMAN REMAINS. THE COMMISSION IS AN ESSENTIAL HUB FOR INFORMATION FLOW FOR STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES THAT ARE OFTEN UNAWARE OF TRIBAL CONCERNS AND WHO TO CONTACT TO SOLICIT INFORMATION REGARDING IMPACTS TO CULTURAL PLACES. THE COMMISSION STRIVES TO EDUCATE LANDOWNERS AND DEVELOPERS THAT ARE OFTEN UNAWARE OF THEIR RESPONSIBILITIES UNDER STATE LAW TO PROTECT CULTURAL PLACES, NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS, AND ASSOCIATED GRAVE ITEMS.

THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY AND OFFICE STAFF IS RESPONSIBLE TO THE COMMISSION, WHICH CONVENES IN SESSION TO HEAR AND ACT UPON ADDITIONAL CONCERNS THAT TRIBAL GROUPS AND INDIVIDUALS PRESENT. THE FULL COMMISSION CONSISTS OF NINE MEMBERS. FIVE MEMBERS MUST BE ELDERS, TRADITIONAL PEOPLE, OR SPIRITUAL LEADERS OF CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN TRIBES.

MISSION STATEMENT

THE MISSION OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION IS TO PROVIDE PROTECTION TO NATIVE AMERICAN BURIALS FROM VANDALISM AND INADVERTENT DESTRUCTION, PROVIDE A PROCEDURE FOR THE NOTIFICATION OF MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS REGARDING THE DISCOVERY OF NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS AND ASSOCIATED GRAVE GOODS, BRING LEGAL ACTION TO PREVENT SEVERE AND IRREPARABLE DAMAGE TO SACRED SHRINES, CEREMONIAL SITES, SANCTIFIED CEMETERIES AND PLACES OF WORSHIP ON PUBLIC PROPERTY, AND MAINTAIN AN INVENTORY OF SACRED PLACES.

VISION

CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN CULTURAL RESOURCES, HABITATION SITES, BURIAL SITES, SACRED SITES, CEREMONIAL SITES, AND PLACES OF WORSHIP ARE LIMITED RESOURCES FOR INDIAN AND NON-INDIAN PEOPLE. THEY ARE IMPORTANT TO THE CULTURE AND SPIRITUAL BELIEFS OF CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICANS. THEREFORE, THEY MUST BE PROTECTED IN A SENSITIVE MANNER THAT INVOLVES LOCAL NATIVE AMERICAN PEOPLE. THE COMMISSION BELIEVES AN EFFECTIVE PROTECTION PROGRAM WILL BENEFIT ALL CITIZENS OF CALIFORNIA.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION ASSEMBLY BILL 4239 (KNOX, 1976)

ASSEMBLY BILL 4239 ESTABLISHED THE NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION (NAHC) AND WAS SIGNED INTO LAW BY GOVERNOR EDMUND G. BROWN JR. ON SEPTEMBER 29, 1976. ASSEMBLY BILL 4239 CREATED AN AUTONOMOUS GOVERNMENTAL BODY WHOSE AUTHORITY WOULD ENCOMPASS THE PROTECTION OF NATIVE AMERICAN CEMETERIES AND SACRED PLACES.

THE NAHC CONSISTS OF NINE MEMBERS APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR WITH THE ADVICE AND CONSENT OF THE SENATE. AT LEAST FIVE OF THE NINE MEMBERS MUST BE ELDERS, TRADITIONAL PEOPLE, OR SPIRITUAL LEADERS OF CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN TRIBES. THE GOVERNOR ALSO APPOINTS THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE COMMISSION. THE NAHC'S POWERS UPON INCEPTION INCLUDED THE PROTECTION OF SIGNIFICANT INDIAN RELIGIOUS AND SACRED SITES, ASSISTING NATIVE AMERICANS IN OBTAINING ACCESS TO SIGNIFICANT RELIGIOUS AND SACRED SITES ON PUBLIC LANDS, AND BRINGING LEGAL ACTION TO PREVENT SEVERE OR IRREPARABLE DAMAGE TO SACRED SITES OR CEREMONIAL PLACES ON PUBLIC LAND.

THE MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS STATUTE AND PROTECTION OF NATIVE AMERICAN BURIALS SENATE BILL 297 (GARAMENDI, 1982)

AS A RESULT OF THE THIRD DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL'S DECISION IN WANA THE BEAR V. COMMUNITY CONSTRUCTION, INC., (1982) 128 CAL.App.3D 536, IT BECAME APPARENT THAT ANCIENT NATIVE AMERICAN BURIAL GROUNDS WERE NOT PROTECTED AS CEMETERIES UNDER CALIFORNIA CEMETERY LAW. SENATE BILL 297 ADDED PUBLIC RESOURCES CODE SECTION 5097.98, WHICH PROTECTS NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS FROM DESECRATION BY REQUIRING THE NAHC TO IDENTIFY THE MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS OF THE NATIVE AMERICAN DECEASED. THE MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE TREATMENT AND DISPOSITION OF NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS TO THE LANDOWNER ON WHOSE PROPERTY THE REMAINS HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED. IF THE LANDOWNER REJECTS THE MOST LIKELY DESCENDANTS' RECOMMENDATIONS, THE REMAINS MUST BE REINTERRED WITH APPROPRIATE DIGNITY ON THE PROPERTY IN AN AREA NOT SUBJECT TO FURTHER AND FUTURE SUBSURFACE DISTURBANCE.

THE CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN GRAVES PROTECTION AND REPATRIATION ACT ASSEMBLY BILL 978 (STEINBERG, 2001)

THE CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN GRAVES PROTECTION AND REPATRIATION ACT (CALNAGPRA) REQUIRES ALL STATE AGENCIES AND MUSEUMS THAT RECEIVE FUNDING FROM THE STATE TO CREATE INVENTORIES OF NATIVE AMERICAN HUMAN REMAINS AND CULTURAL ITEMS IN THEIR POSSESSION AND REPATRIATE THESE ITEMS WHEN POSSIBLE. CALNAGPRA PROVIDES FOR CIVIL PENALTIES FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH THE ACT. THE NAHC WAS GRANTED AUTHORITY TO ENFORCE CALNAGPRA IN 2014 BY LEGISLATION SIGNED INTO LAW BY GOVERNOR EDMUND G. BROWN JR.

TRIBAL CONSULTATION WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENT PRIOR TO THE ADOPTION OR AMENDMENT OF GENERAL OR SPECIFIC PLANS SENATE BILL 18 (BURTON, 2004)

SENATE BILL 18 REQUIRES LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO CONDUCT MEANINGFUL CONSULTATION WITH CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN TRIBES ON THE CONTACT LIST MAINTAINED BY THE NAHC PRIOR TO THE ADOPTION OR AMENDMENT OF A CITY OR COUNTY GENERAL OR SPECIFIC PLAN. THE PURPOSE OF SENATE BILL 18 IS TO PROTECT NATIVE AMERICAN SANCTIFIED CEMETERIES, PLACES OF WORSHIP, RELIGIOUS OR CEREMONIAL SITES, OR HISTORICAL OR CULTURAL SITES.

INCLUSION OF "TRIBAL CULTURAL RESOURCES" AS A CATEGORY OF RESOURCES TO BE CONSIDERED AND THE REQUIREMENT OF TRIBAL CONSULTATION UNDER THE CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT ASSEMBLY BILL 52 (GATTO, 2014)

SIGNED INTO LAW BY GOVERNOR EDMUND G. BROWN JR., ASSEMBLY BILL 52 AMENDED THE CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA) TO INCLUDE "TRIBAL CULTURAL RESOURCES" AS A SEPARATE CATEGORY OF RESOURCES TO BE CONSIDERED UNDER THE CEQA ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW PROCESS. TRIBAL CULTURAL KNOWLEDGE MUST BE CONSIDERED IN DETERMINING WHETHER A RESOURCE IS A TRIBAL CULTURAL RESOURCE.

ASSEMBLY BILL 52 ALSO REQUIRES ANY CEQA LEAD AGENCY TO CONSULT WITH ANY CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN TRIBE THAT IS TRADITIONALLY AND CULTURALLY AFFILIATED WITH THE GEOGRAPHIC AREA OF A PROPOSED PROJECT IF THE TRIBE REQUESTED NOTIFICATION OF PROJECTS IN THE LEAD AGENCY'S AREA OF JURISDICTION AND REQUESTED CONSULTATION.

CALIFORNIA INDIAN SEAL

THE INDIAN SEAL PORTRAYS THE HUMANITY OF THE INDIGENOUS PEOPLE OF CALIFORNIA. THIS SEAL REPRESENTS AN ARTISTIC SYMMETRY AND HARMONY, WHICH IS REFLECTIVE OF INDIAN CULTURE.

The idea of recognizing California's Native American history prior to statehood with a bronze seal on the west steps of the State Capitol originated with Larry Myers, the Executive Secretary of the Native American Heritage Commission. Secretary Myers and State Librarian Kevin Starr approached Assembly Speaker Robert Hertzberg. Speaker Hertzberg, supported the concept and carried the legislation making the vision a reality.

For at least forty generations, Native Americans have lived within the boundaries of present day California, loving the land, cherishing their traditions. Native American names dot the landscape of California and knowledge of their rich culture is essential to understanding the complete history of what is now the State of California. Native Americans were the first Californians and Californians today should be educated about the enduring legacy of the Native Americans in California.

The California Indian Seal commemorates the contributions, history, and continuing sovereignty of generations of California Indians. It recognizes that Indian People lived throughout what is now California when the Spanish settlement was founded in 1769. At the time more than 100 different Native American languages were used, with at least as many cultural forms of religion and customs. The names of 68 California Indian tribes inscribed along the border represent the historically significant linguistic and regional tribes in California.

An Indian woman, with an infant and child, symbolizes the importance of family unity and cultural continuity. A basket, an oak tree, a dancer holding wands, and a man wearing a flicker quill headdress and a clamshell necklace reflect diverse aspects of Indian culture. Two figures journeying by boat represent coastal Indian tribes. Three military jets, arcing towards the top seal, portray the military experiences that many Indians have in common.

Artist Robert Freeman, a Luiseño Indian born on the Rincon Indian Reservation in San Diego County, designed this circular bronze seal.

Three Military Jets rising into the sky represent the continuing participation of Indians in American society as veterans in the armed forces of the United States. This image also symbolizes contemporary contributions of California Indians who work in the aerospace industry technology of the 21st Century.

A Pomo Indian (Northern/Central Region) with headdress and necklace. The yellowhammer band (flicker bird) designates a dancer. Necklaces have a utilitarian, ornamental, and symbolic meaning and sometimes reflect the status or rank within a tribe. The featured necklace is made of clamshell, which is typical of the northern and central part of the state. Abalone, dentalia, and olivella were other shells used for making necklaces in other parts of the state.

IMAGES ON THE RIGHT

Luiseño/Cahuilla Indian (Southern Region) performing a traditional bird dance. The California condor was a venerable and huge animal that represents great nobility for Indians. This image depicts one of many bird dances around the state such as the eagle, goose, duck, and crane. Dances are also used to honor other animals such as the bear, white deer, "first-run" salmon, and coyote.

The dancer has wands in his hands that he swishes in movement to imitate the sound of bird wings. Indian tribes around the state used other types of instruments. Some are used to make music while others are used to keep time in the dance such as clappers, gourds, and rattles. The dance is connected to a ceremony that reaffirms the Indians' connection with the natural world.

The dancer's netted skirt is woven of natural plant fibers. Other skirts were woven of bark or reeds. The men sometimes used netted woven bags for gathering. Nets were also used for hunting and fishing. The feathers on the skirt are eagle and condor feathers as a way to further emulate the bird.

The Oak Tree produces acorns, which was a staple food for all California Indian tribes, and was eaten in many different forms such as bread, soup, or biscuits.

The Roundhouse is found in the Northern and Central regions and is used for sacred ceremonies and dances as well as for community gatherings.

CENTRAL IMAGES

An Indian woman with infant and child represents the sensitivity and unity of family. children provide the continuity of new generations to carry on tradition and they ensure the legacy and heritage of our culture. The woman's woven hat is typical of the tribes of the Northwestern part of the state (such as the Tolowa, Kurok, Yurok, and Hupa tribes).

The shape of the state of California depicts the embodiment of all tribes within the historic boundary of the State of California.

The generic design of the basket represents all tribes in California. Baskets had a utilitarian function as they were used in gathering and preparing food. Later, baskets became a source of trade.

BOTTOM IMAGES

Two figures paddling out to sea represent the Chumash and other coastal Indians (Central and Southern Coastal Region) in a pine boat. The Chumash were excellent navigators and understood the tides and currents of the Pacific Ocean; they developed a form of money used for bartering; their artwork was multi-chromatic, and included cave paintings; and they, like other California Indian tribes, had a sophisticated social network.

Cormorant bird in water. Coastal tribes of Southern California used these leashed birds to dive and retrieve fish.

The diversity of bird life in California also gave an abundance of color used for feather baskets, blankets, and regalia.

BORDER IMAGES

The four cardinal directions that are occupied by images of bear, eagle, salmon, and deer carry traditional value. In Indian culture the number "four" signifies contact with the universe. The animals provide a balance and recognition of animals beyond a source of food, for which many California tribes have dedicated a traditional dance as described above.

The names of 68 California Indian tribes inscribed along the border represent the historically significant linguistic and regional tribes in California.

"The Eighteen Unratified Treaties of 1851-1852 between the California Indians and the United States Government"

Excerpts from: Heizer, Robert F. 1972. The Eighteen Unratified Treaties of 1851-1852 between the California Indians and the United States Government.
Archeology Research Facility, Department of Anthropology, University of California. Berkeley, CA.

Between April 29, 1851, and August 22, 1852, a series of eighteen treaties "of friendship and peace" were negotiated with a large number of what were said to be "tribes" of California Indians by three treaty Commissioners whose appointments by President Millard Fillmore were authorized by the U.S. Senate on September 29, 1850. Eighteen treaties were made, but on July 8, 1852 the Senate refused to ratify them in executive session and ordered them filed under an injunction of secrecy which was not removed until January 18, 1905 (Ellison 1922, 1925). The texts of the unratified treaties were made public on January 19, 1905 at the order of the U.S. Senate which met in executive session on that day in the Thirty-second Congress, First Session.

A detailed account of the whole matter of the appointment of the three Commissioners (George W. Barbour, Redick McKee and O. M. Wozencraft), their travels, and an analysis of the actual nature of the groups listed as "tribes" has been prepared. The first and second treaties ("M" and "N") were negotiated by the Commissioners acting together as a board. But the urgency of the matter, the difficulties of treating with Indians over such a large area, and the slowness involved in the three men acting as a board, indicated the desirability of each Commissioner assuming responsibility for a large area so that the state could be covered more rapidly. As a result, and because they could not informally agree on who was to be responsible for which area, the Commissioners drew lots. Barbour arranged for treaties A - D, Wozencraft arranged 8 treaties (E - L) and McKee for four (O - R). The treaties differ somewhat in their wording, but they are essentially all the same. Some treaties (for example A - D) were "signed" by Indians who, almost without exception, had Spanish given names. We may assume that the treaty was read to them in Spanish by an interpreter who was attached to the treaty-making party, and that the provisions in the treaty were understood by the signatories. On the other hand, a number of treaties were "signed" by Indians who did not have Spanish given names and who, for the most part, probably did not know either Spanish or English. In some of these instances, it seems highly unlikely that the so-called interpreters knew the several native tongues of the people who were being parlayed with, and while there may have been some kind of communication, there is great probability that the literal wording of the treaties often was not, and indeed could not be, made intelligible to the Indians present.¹

But the distance between theory and practice went even further. None of the Commissioners had any knowledge whatsoever of California Indians or their cultural practices, especially those regarding land ownership and use. As treaty makers, they were under orders to make certain arrangements with California Indian tribes. As they moved with their trains through the state they made "Camps"², sent out the word that the treaty-making party was anxious to talk with the local people, visited Indians in villages, and invited them to attend a treaty-making session. Some Indians were suspicious and refused to attend, with the result that troops might discipline them.³

Every group met with is listed as representing a "tribe". We do not know whether the Commissioners were aware of the true nature of the named groups which they were dealing with. George Gibbs, who accompanied Redick McKee, seemed to be conscious of the error that was being made in assuming that any named group was a tribe (Gibbs 1853:110). We know today that most of the so-called tribes were nothing more than villages. We can also assume that men listed as "chiefs" were just as likely not to be chiefs, or at least tribelet heads who are called chiefs by anthropologists. Further, since land was owned in common, even chiefs had no authority to cede tribal or village lands. Rarely, if ever, in United States history have so few persons without authority been assumed to have had so much, and given so much for so little in return to the federal government. The three Commissioners did not have the slightest idea of the actual extent of tribal lands of any group they met with. Their orders were to secure Indian Land title to California, and they managed to do this to their satisfaction by making treaties with some Indians and then dividing all of California west of the Sierra-Cascade crest into eighteen unequal cession areas which, happily, quite covered the entire region. If the Commissioners had made 12 treaties, the ceded areas would have been larger; if they had made 30 treaties the areas would have been smaller.

Taken all together, one cannot imagine a more poorly conceived, more inaccurate, less informed, and less democratic process than the making of the 18 treaties in 1851-52 with the California Indians. It was a farce from beginning to end, though apparently the Commissioners, President Fillmore, and the members of the United States Senate were quite unaware of that. The alternative is that all of these were simply going through motions in a matter which did not in the slightest degree really concern them. What better evidence of the latter possibility do we require than the fact that on July 8, 1852 the Senate rejected the very treaties it had itself authorized and appropriated funds for their negotiation on September 29, 1850.

Endnotes

1 Gibbs (1853:116) who accompanied McKee reports of the Northern Pomo near Willits: “We remained in this camp two days. A considerable number of men were brought in, but all attempts to assemble their families served only to excite their suspicions. In fact, the object of the agent, in the process of double translation through which it passed, was never fairly brought before them. The speeches were first translated into Spanish by one, and then into the Indian by another; and this, not to speak of the very dim ideas of the last interpreter, was sufficient to prevent much enlightenment under any circumstances. But the truth was, that the gentlemen for whose benefit they were meant by no means comprehended any possible motive on our part but mischief. That figurative personage, the great father at Washington, they had never heard of. They had seen a few white men from time to time, and the encounter had impressed them with a strong desire to see no more, except with the advantage of manifest superiority on their own part. Their earnest wish was clearly to be left alone.” A little further north Gibbs (op. cit.:119) notes that “Quite a number of Indians were assembled and presents distributed, but no treaty attempted; for our Clear Lake interpreter, although able to comprehend them, could not explain freely in turn.” Among the Wiyot of lower Eel River, Gibbs (op. cit.:130) notes, “As it had become evident that nothing could be effected with the Indians present, for want of interpreters, it was concluded to break up camp the next day and proceed on.” It would be interesting to know whether the several treaties negotiated by McKee were fully understood by all of the individuals signing as native representatives of their tribes.

It will be noted that not a single Indian actually signed his name — without exception each made his “mark”. It is probable that there were among the people who were treated with, on the assumption that they were the legal representatives of their groups, not a single literate individual.

2 Each “Camp” where a treaty was made was named by the Commissioner in charge (or by the Commissioners as a board in the case of treaties M and N) unless, of course, the treaty was made at an already named place such as Bidwell’s Ranch (treaty G) Temecula (treaty K), etc.

3 The Daily Alta California (newspaper) for May 10, 1851 ran an article on the progress of the treaty making then going on based on interviews with two of the Commissioners (probably Barbour and Wozencraft). Referring to the treaty-making session with the groups signing treaties A and N, the article states, “There are parts of two or three tribes which would not come in to treat. Some of these, it is understood, are fractions of the Chow-chil-lies. The Commissioners, finding it impossible to treat with them, Major Savage with three companies moved against them, came up with them with only a river between, and had a skirmish, killing two or three of them”. Reluctance of some groups to enter into treaties is attested by George Gibbs (1853:113).

NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION MILESTONES

The California Legislature recognized that California Indian culture was neither sufficiently understood nor adequately chronicled and that it could never be reproduced or replaced. The Legislature requested that archaeological sites be reported to the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

1971

A report by a State agency exposed a serious problem with the State's archaeological records and recommended the creation of a Native American heritage agency.

1975

DQ University Conference

A conference of Native Americans at DQ University was held to discuss Native American heritage concerns. These concerns were the impetus behind AB 4239, which created the Native American Heritage Commission.

1976

AB 4239 (Knox) The Native American Heritage Commission

AB 4239 created the Native American Heritage Commission to protect and ensure continued access to Native American sacred sites, including burials and historic sites on public lands. The Commission was charged with identifying and cataloging Native American sites of special religious or social significance on public lands and making recommendations regarding the protection of and continued accessibility to these sites.

1977

Native American Heritage Commission's Inaugural Swearing-In Ceremony

The inaugural swearing-in ceremony of the Native American Heritage Commission's first Executive Secretary, Steve Rios, and Native American Heritage Commissioners was conducted by Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr.

1982

Wana The Bear v. Community Construction* (1982) 128 Cal.App.3d 536

Wana the Bear, a direct descendant of the Bear People Lodge of the Miwok People, sought reversal of a lower court's decision that a Native American burial ground was not a cemetery entitled to protection under California cemetery law. The California Third District Court of Appeal affirmed that the burial ground in question was not public cemetery protected under California law. This case would be the impetus for the Most Likely Descendants statute, Public Resources Code section 5097.98.

SB 297 (Garamendi) Most Likely Descendants Legislation

SB 297, enacted on September 27, 1982, authorized the Native American Heritage Commission to identify Most Likely Descendants (MLDs) of deceased Native Americans whose remains had been inadvertently discovered. SB 297 requires the landowner on whose lands Native American human remains are found to confer with the Most Likely Descendants for the treatment and disposition, with appropriate dignity, of Native American human remains.

Gasquet and Orleans Project (G-O Road Litigation)

The Native American Heritage Commission joined litigation to stop construction of a logging road in the Six Rivers National Forest by the U.S. Forest Service in an area the Yurok, Karuk and Tolowa people hold sacred. The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of California and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit held that construction of the road as planned violated the American Indian Religious Freedom Act. The U.S. Supreme Court overruled the Ninth Circuit's decision on First Amendment grounds. Lyng v. Northwest Indian Cemetery Protective Ass'n (1988) 485 U.S. 439.

Environmental Protection Information Center v. Johnson* (1985) 170 Cal.App.3d 604

The California Third District Court of Appeal held that, under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the Native American Heritage Commission is an agency that must be consulted when evaluating projects for their environmental impacts.

1990 People v. Van Horn (1990) 218 Cal.App.3d 1378

The California Fourth District Court of Appeal held that Public Resources Code section 5097.99 prohibits the possession of Native American artifacts taken from a Native American grave or cairn unless the possession is in accordance with an agreement between a landowner and appropriate Native American groups or pursuant to a recommendation by the descendants of the deceased Native American.

1993 AB 861 (Knight) Abolishment of the Native American Heritage Commission

This bill was introduced to abolish the Native American Heritage Commission in order to save the State of California money. Tribes, archaeologists, state agencies and local agencies supported the Commission by writing letters and providing testimony in opposition to the bill. The bill failed. The Commission prevailed.

1998 The “Save Mount Shasta” Campaign

The Native American Heritage Commission, Tribes, and the “Save Mount Shasta” organization united to protect the Panther Meadow and the Mount Shasta Cosmological District from direct and indirect adverse effects of a proposed ski area development to be located on places of traditional and cultural significance. The U.S. Forest Service rescinded its permit for the ski area largely because of its impacts on Native American traditional use areas.

1999 - 2000 Ishi’s Remains Are Reunited and Repatriated

The Native American Heritage Commission and Tribes advocated for and secured, the reunion of Ishi’s cremated and uncremated remains for reburial in the Pit River area.

2001 AB 978 (Steinberg) The California Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act of 2001

The California Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act of 2001 (CalNAGPRA) created a Repatriation Oversight Commission to ensure that all California Native American human remains and associated cultural items be treated with dignity and respect and repatriated in accordance with the State’s repatriation policy. The duties of the Repatriation Oversight Commission were assumed by statute by the Native American Heritage Commission in 2015.

2002 SB 1816 (Chesbro) Native American Historic Resource Protection Act

SB 18 provides that local governments must consult with Tribes on the contact list maintained by the Native American Heritage Commission when adopting or amending general or specific plans or when designating open space that contains protected Native American sites or features.

2004 The California Public Records Act Amended to Prevent the Disclosure of Native American Sacred Sites

Section 6254, subdivision (r) was added to the California Public Records Act to exempt from public disclosure the records of Native American graves, cemeteries, and sacred places maintained by, or in the possession of, the Native American Heritage Commission, another state agency, or a local agency.

2014 AB 52 (Gatto) Tribal Consultation and Consideration of Impacts to Tribal Cultural Resources under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

AB 52 (Gatto) added a new cultural resource, tribal cultural resources, the impacts to which must be considered during the environmental review process under the CEQA. AB 52 also provides for tribal consultation prior to the issuance of environmental impact report, negative declaration, or mitigated negative declaration.

Assembly

RESOLUTION

By the Honorable Luis A. Alejo, 30th Assembly District; the Honorable John A. Pérez, Speaker of the Assembly; the Honorable Das Williams, 37th Assembly District; and the Honorable Darrell Steinberg, President pro Tempore of the California State Senate; Relative to

California Native American Heritage Month

Whereas, The month of September every year has been recognized as California Native American Heritage Month for the purpose of informing Californians of the valuable historical and cultural contributions, past and present, of Native Americans; and

Whereas, Native Americans were the first human inhabitants of the land that is now the great State of California, and they have contributed and continue to contribute immeasurably to our state's history, diversity, economy, and culture by distinguishing themselves as academics, entrepreneurs, and leaders throughout our state; and

Whereas, Prior to the European colonization of the Americas, the indigenous people of California thrived with a vibrant culture and society; and

Whereas, California Native Americans have preserved their rich heritage, which is among the world's great cultural treasures and is richly interwoven with California's diverse social fabric, in the face of adversity; and

Whereas, Through their rich cultural traditions and proud ancestry, California Native Americans have made vital contributions to the strength and diversity of our society in such areas as law, medicine, business, education, and the United States Armed Forces; and

Whereas, In spite of a tragic past, Native Americans have been generous citizens and proudly served in the United States Armed Forces for over 200 years, defending the security of our state and nation with their lives, including engaging in World War II and Operation Iraqi Freedom with honor, determination, and distinction; and

Whereas, The work of Native American leaders has sought to bridge racial, socioeconomic, and environmental barriers by empowering and educating people in order to protect Native American culture and heritage for future generations; and

Whereas, Although California Native Americans have faced numerous barriers to business development, they have overcome those barriers to persevere and contribute to Native American communities throughout the state and country, exemplifying Native American entrepreneurship in such areas as economic development, the food service industry, health care, and banking finance; and

Whereas, California tribal governments today support more than 60,000 of our fellow citizens and contribute $7.5 billion to our shared economy; and

Whereas, California tribes have generously donated their time and millions of dollars each year for education, youth programs, health care services, and other essential social services that strengthen California; and

Whereas, California today is home to the largest population of Native Americans in the 50 states, including both the rebounding numbers of our native tribes and others drawn to the Golden State by its myriad attractions; and

Whereas, As we celebrate the contributions of Native Americans to the great State of California, let us recognize the success of tribal businesses and the rise of tribal members in all walks of life as a testament to the resilience and enduring spirit of our native peoples; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by Assembly Member Luis A. Alejo, Speaker of the Assembly John A. Pérez, Assembly Member Das Williams, and President pro Tempore of the California State Senate Darrell Steinberg, That they recognize the month of September every year as California Native American Heritage Month, commemorate California Native Americans as a symbol of hope and courage to all citizens, and applaud them for their outstanding contributions to the State of California.

"Jerry" Brown Jr., with the signing of Assembly Bill 4239, was the first such entity in the United States, charged with the mission of protecting and preserving Native American cultural resources; and

WHEREAS, the CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION has acted in order to prevent damage to and insure Native American access to sacred sites for California's 164 tribes through maintaining an inventory of Native American sacred sites, commenting on environmental review documents; and

WHEREAS, the CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION assists in ensuring that Native American grave sites and remains are treated with appropriate dignity and respect by designating a Most Likely Descendent upon their inadvertent discovery and acting as mediators in disputes between tribes and private land owners; and

WHEREAS, from its inception the CALIFORNIA NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE COMMISSION has been led by a panel of nine, appointed, volunteer members from California tribes, who are dedicated to the Commission's commitment to preserving tribal cultural resources; and
